

MTb Author instructions

MTb is the official journal of the Netherlands Society for Tropical Medicine and International Health. Our audience is broad and includes medical doctors, global health doctors, researchers in global/international health, social scientists and policy makers in the field of global/international health. The majority of the readers (still) have a background in TMIH.

Below please find the instructions for your contribution to MTb:

- Language and length: contributions should be written in English (UK). Please keep the text within the limit of 1000-1300 words with a maximum of three tables or illustrations. Book reviews, letters to the editor, proceedings of conferences generally are confined to 500-600 words.
- References: limit the number of references to a maximum of 15. Do not use end- or footnotes, but list them in a separate document according to the sequence in the text. References in the text are placed between brackets, e.g. [1]. Use Vancouver Style for the references:
Reynolds EH, Bottiglieri T, Laundry M et al. Subacute degeneration with high serum vitamin B12 level and abnormal vitamin B12 binding protein. Arch Neurol 1993;50:739-42.
- Style: Choose a catchy title (and subtitle). Refer in the introduction to the relevance of the subject by (if possible) linking it to current developments in the field/topic you are covering in the article. Use short meaningful subheadings and end the article with conclusions and/or discussion.
- Lay-out, illustrations and photos: submit the text in Word (version 6.0) or higher (Times New Roman 12 pt). Do not use any special layout for the title and subheadings, and do not include tabs or special enumerating. Submit any illustrations, figures, tables or photos in a separate file. Photo specifics: written consent from the (recognisable) people in a photo is needed. Format should be jpg or tiff, 300 dpi.
- Contact details: Include the e-mail address of the first author, which will be published. A physical address of the first author can be provided to the MTb secretariat in case the author wishes to receive a number of printed copies. This will not be published. Provide for all authors (including the first author) the following information: first name, surname, academic title(s), and specialisation/field of expertise, present affiliation or, if relevant, previous affiliation.

The article should be submitted to: info@nvtg.org. Previous publications are available on www.nvtg.org.
